Vision for Peatlands:

“By 2020, 50,000 hectares of degraded peatland will have been restored, and by 2030 we will have increased this to 250,000 hectares. By 2050, Scotland’s expanded peatlands will be thriving habitats, sustaining a diverse ecosystem.”

Since 2012, almost 15,000 hectares of degraded peatlands have been set on their road to restoration, working closely with our partners and land managers.

A further 7,500 hectares are planned for restoration activity this year.

Healthy peatlands provide many benefits:

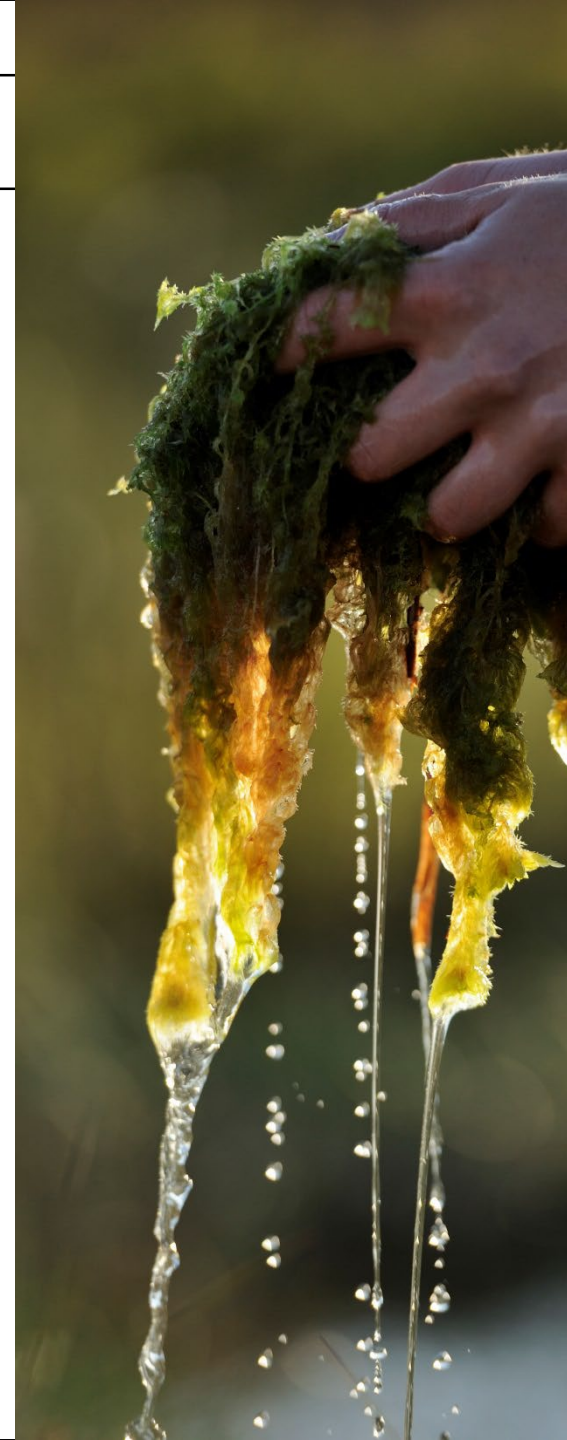

Peatlands are Scotland's largest terrestrial carbon store and by restoring them to full health we can help make a significant contribution to many aspects of society, including in our response to climate change.
